OCONEE WMA

VEAZEY TRA

An aerial photograph of a vineyard with a distinct purple line drawn across it. The line starts from the bottom right and extends towards the top left, passing through a cluster of vines. The vineyard is characterized by its geometric patterns of rows and paths.
